Hygiene Tips—How to properly disinfect fabric face masks

It is important to keep your mask clean and sanitized, both before and after use following the process below:

After usage:

Wash your mask: Machine wash is best. It is important to note that detergents with bleach-like compounds or other active ingredients should be used when washing masks to kill bacteria. The temperature of the water should be hot, preferably at least 60 degrees Celsius [140 degrees Fahrenheit]. If hand washing is your only option, lather the masks with soap and scrub for at least 20 seconds with warm to hot water .

Dry your mask: Dry your mask on the highest possible heat setting. Heat helps to kill bacteria that may be on the surface of your mask.

Check for rips, tears, holes: It is important to frequently check for rips, holes, or tears in the fabric of your face mask. If you notice any damage to your face mask, discard the mask.
